ON OUR MUST-READ LIST

health-centric cookbooks

1 Canadian chef-turned-stylist Sasha Seymour shows the versatility of one of today's hottest superfoods in Coconut Every Day. With meal ideas for breakfast, lunch and dinner (not to mention snacks and drinks), you can feast on the wholesome ingredient all day long.

2 In her food-lover's guide to vegetable gardening, Grow Cook Eat, author Willi Galloway takes readers from seed to table with detailed growing, harvesting and cooking instructions for 50 delectable dishes.

3 Eat your greens – and reds and yellows and purples. Nutritionist Frances Largeman-Roth's colour-coded book of veggie-centric recipes, Eating in Color, will help you get your little ones eating their broccoli, beets and squash alike.

4 Adding to her repertoire of healthful cookbooks, chef and author Julie Morris brings forth Superfood Juices. If you're looking for the quick and easy way to introduce vitamins and nutrients into your diet, this title will be your main squeeze.

5 Myra Goodman, co-founder of Earthbound Farm – North America's biggest organic produce grower – and her daughter, Marea, offer more than 90 vegan recipes in Straight From the Earth.

Style at Home
managing editor and resident crafter Catherine Therrien shows
you how to create a free-form wire pendant light.

TIP: COLLECT THE WIRE HANGERS FROM YOUR DRY CLEANING TO CREATE THIS PROJECT!

- 1 Suspend the light cord from a pole placed horizontally (a broomstick works great!).
- 2 Cut off the top portions of the wire hangers using wire cutters. Then, using the pliers, bend each end of the wire hangers outward to form a hook shape.
- 3 Take one of the discarded hanger tops and cut a 2" piece from it. Form the wire piece into a circle, place it on the cord (above the socket) and twist the ends closed using pliers. (The circle shouldn't be able to pass over the socket.)
- 4 Take a prepared wire hanger and hook one end around the wire circle; twist the end closed using pliers. Hook and secure the other end to another wire hanger.

5 Continue building up the shade in a free-form fashion by hooking and securing the ends of wire hangers together. Step back every so often to assess your work and to determine if you need to fill in any gaps.

MATERIALS

- Black light cord set
- White wire hangers (about 15)
- Wire cutters
- Pliers
